Pujya Rajaji

I had had an occasion to go through your views about the automobile industry in India. This matter had come up in the Parliamentary Consultative Committee attached to the Ministry of Industrial Development and I had put forward the view that in the present economic conditions of our country there is no justification whatsoever for manufacturing cars for private consumption. Looking to the severely debilitated condition of our public transport systems, I am of the opinion that the entire money should be diverted to the development of mass transit systems. I hope you will kindly consider this and enlighten me with your views.

With profound regards,

Yours sincerely
