Dear Mr. Raja,

Thank you for sending me the required copies of my book. There is no need of more copies now.

At the end of page 10, there is a major mistake. The sentence should read: "Exposed to the environment of business culture, the bureaucrat is more easily infected with corruption than inspired by the true entrepreneurial spirit." The words underlined above have been left out. On the next page there is a misprint in the quote from Yeltsin. It should read "From each [not for each] according to his abilities," The rest of the sentence is all right.

complimentary

You may send a copy of the book to Dr. Manmohan Singh. Also, if it is not too much trouble, a copy to Dr. Partha Dasgupta, Faculty of Economics, Sidgwick Avenue, Cambridge, England.

I hope that you have by now completely recovered from your sickness.
With kind regards,
Yours sincerely,
Amitabh

Dear Professor Datta,

Shri Raju still is in the nursing home. He is recovering and we are hopeful that by this week end he will be discharged and soon will be his old self. I am replying on his behalf to your postcard dated the 27th March, 1992 on the 5th of May, eloquent of the working of the postal system."

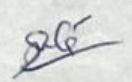

We must apologize for the sessions slip in page 10 of the pamphlet which has cript in despite very careful proof reading. Fortunately, the omission on being at the end of the page we may be able to set right the mistake. We are going ahead withit and shall send you a revised as soon as it is ready.

I shall send the revised copies both to Dr. Manmohan Singh and to Dr. Partha Das Gupta and mention that these all sent at your suggestion.

I am glad to tell you that the pamphlet has evoked a sympathetic response from many quoters.

With regards,

I remain,
Yours sincerely,

(R. Srinivasan)
