My dear Thakkar,

I understand that you have shifted and was waiting to get your new address from the Bombay office so that I could write and thank you not only for coming all the way to Rajkot at the sacrifice of your time and energies but also for all you did to try and be of help during the election campaign. As you know I relied a great deal on your work and there is no doubt that you did as much as any one individual could have done. If there had been more persons like you spread over the constituency the result might have been different.

Even as it was your coming was a great help and my only regret is that your dedicated efforts have not been rewarded with success. All the same, please accept my grateful thanks for the time and effort you dedicated to this purpose which I deeply appreciate.

Please also tell your wife how much I appreciate her putting up with all the inconvenience she must have had to,

Yours sincerely,

(M. R. MASANI)
