Dated August 26, 1967.

Dear friend

Vandemataram,

In our Souvenir to be published on the occasion of the inaugural Convention of the Bhartiya Kranti Dal, we are arranging a Symposium in which eminent men from all walks of life will participate.

The theme of the Symposium is: Future of Political Parties in India. Will Democracy Survive? Whether the Cause of Democracy can be helped?

Although the Symposium will be published in a party Souvenir, we wish hundred flowers to bloom in its pages. Each shade of opinion will be represented, and leaders of most political parties, from the CPI (Marxist) to the Jansangh, have been invited to air their views. To provide ballast against these strong winds, independent non-partisan intellectuals have been asked to join too.

We invite you to contribute your opinion on the above topic. If you have not time enough to write a detailed diagnosis, we shall be content with about 500 words. As the Convention will take place on October 1st, we shall be grateful to receive your article latest by the second week of September.

I hope your opinions will help in analysing the post-election crucible that is India, and predict the chemistry of its future.

With regards,

Sincerely yours,

R. M. Totala
